BETHLEHEM, CT - Producers will once again have an opportunity to attend New England's Premier Annual Boer Goat Production Sale on Sunday, June 4, 2006 at the Bethlehem Boer Goat Ranch in Bethlehem, Connecticut. What began as a local sale three years ago now attracts buyers from as far away as Ohio, Tennessee, North Carolina, Maine and St. Thomas in the Caribbean.

Quality and selection are no longer indigenous to Texas. This year's sale is featuring the Bethlehem Boer Goat Ranch Trilogy of Klein Tarzan, Tyson and Vlek, the genetics of the Albright Boer Goat Ranch and the genetics of Pistolero and Freightrain.

The Bethlehem Boer Goat Ranch's Chris Glynos states, "We are able to offer a generous selection that you would traditionally find in Texas at New England prices. This is very important to the producers in our area."

This sale is unique in other ways as well. All animals purchased at the Bethlehem Boer Goat Ranch come with a breeder's guarantee, the availability of production records and the knowledge that every previous customer was completely satisfied with their purchase.

Last year's sale saw yearling bucks averaging between $800 and $1,200. Recipient mothers with embryo-transferred kids sold for an average of $1,500.

The Bethlehem Boer Goat Ranch has a track record of specializing in making available foundation animals that will compliment anyone's breeding program. Each year's production sale has seen the return of all of the bidders from the previous year plus new bidders.

In addition to this year's sale, the Bethlehem Boer Goat Ranch is presenting a seminar on meat goat production. The seminar is Saturday, June 3 at the Painted Pony Restaurant. Speakers include Chris Glynos of Bethlehem, CT, Frank Pinkerton of Texas, Ken McMillin of Louisiana, Bob Herr of New York and Brian Payne of Alberta, Canada.

Quality, selection, experience and an extensive investment are the results of the always-improving Bethlehem breeding program. Chris Glynos concludes, "Our trilogy of consistency, productivity and performance will compliment anyone's breeding program. Don't just take our word for it, attend this year's sale and see for yourself!"

This year's Bethlehem Boer Goat Sale is Sunday, June 4. For reservations call (866) BIG-BOER or visit www.bigboer.com.
